COMPULSORY ARMY ORDER IS DELAYED

Huerin Had Said It Would be in Ef-fect by June 1: Prison Soldiers Abolished by Cuellar.

Gen. Huerta, president of the Mexican republic, has failed to make good on another best bet. This was that the compulsory military, service law would go into effect by June L. When he preclaimed the decree, Gen. Huerta said positively that the law would become effective on June I after which date all able bodied men, exclusive of students, government officers and students, government officers and other specified classes, would be com-pelled to spend nine years in the army pelled to spend nine years in the army service. A committee of the army was appointed by the president to work out the details of the enforced service act and this committee was to report in time for the law to become effective. But the committee delayed its proceedings until after the date set by the president's decree, and the order for the execution of the decree has not yet been given.

CLERKS WALK OUT; DISORDERS FOLLOW

Stormy Scenes Are Einsted on South El Paso and Overland Streets Monday Night.

El Paso and Overland Streets

Menday Night.

A small sized riot and three arrests followed the action of the Spanish cierks of the South El Paso and Overland street stores, in walking out of the stores at 6 octock Monday night. Sunday afternoon the members of the Spanish clerks union decided to quit work at this hour. A request that the merchants close their stores at this time was made. In most instances the merchants granted it. Ben Coltman, proprietor of the store at 317 South El Puso street, it is said, refused to close his place of business, and this, it is claimed, started the altercation. Coltman, Jim Wisson and F. Marcel were strested by the police and docketed on a charge of fighting.

According to the agreement between the clerks, when 6 octock arrived the women clerks were to quit work. They were to be followed an hour later by the men. When 6 octock Monday night came, the women clerks of the South El Paso and Overland street stores prepared to leave. They were joined later by the men. Forming in a line the clerks from one store visited an adjoining store where their number was augmented. By the time they arrived in a long that number were several hundred Mexicans who followed the

THINK APPOINTMENT WILL REMEDY EVIL

WILL REMEDY EVIL

Jeseph S. Myers, of Dallas, who was appointed United States inspector of contract labor at the port of El Paso, by secretary of labor Wilson, is well known in El Paso among the union labor men, as he has been connected with the cause of organized labor in Texas for a number of years. He was a locomotive fireman until he was appointed to the legislative committee of the firemen's union of the state. He was later made a member of the joint labor board representing all of the labor organizations in the state in an effort to get more favorable laws for the laboring men.

The local labor unionists consider his appointment a victory for them in the long fight which they have been making against the flood of peon labor which has been coming through this port from Mexico for a number of years. They say that this influx of undesirable labor has worked harm to the American and native born Mexicans of the United States, and has created a charity condition in El Paso. With the appointment of the inspector for this class of labor, they say, that many abuses of the immigration laws will be remedled.
